Priorities

CDC established the priorities for its funded CCC programs in 2010. These include—

- Emphasizing primary prevention of cancer—stopping cancer before it starts. Primary prevention includes encouraging people to make healthy choices such as not smoking or by quitting smoking, eating a healthy diet, and keeping a healthy weight.
- Helping people find cancer early by getting screened as recommended.
- Supporting people who have been diagnosed with cancer through treatment and beyond.
- Helping put policies in place to make sure cancer control measures are there for places that need it most.
- Promoting access to quality health care for all people, including those in communities with a higher burden of cancer. This includes making sure that people experience health care that respects and incorporates a person's or community's unique cultural traditions.
- Evaluating policies and programs to see if they work well.
